

MATRIMONIAL.

CHENAULT-THOMPSON.
—One of the most brilliant society events of the autumn season was the marriage of Miss Sarah Chenault, of Lexington, to Mr. James W. Thompson, of near Paris, which was solennized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Overton Chenault, on Ashland Avenue, in Lexington, Saturday evening, at eight o'clock.

The home was decorated most elaborately with southern smilax garlanded all the casements, the chandeliers, the stairway and the sun parlor. The drawing room was in green and white, having an altar arranged by the mantel with palms, ferns, clusters of cathedral candles on gold pedestals, smilax draperies and quantities of ascension lilies, the mantle banked with ferns and lilies, among which were white candles in brass candlesticks.

During the assembling of the guests an orchestra of piano and violins, directed by Mrs. Orestia rendered several selections and the Bridal March from Lohengrin for the coming of the wedding procession.

The bride came down the stairway with her father, who gave her in marriage and was preceded, first by the ribbon bearers, Miss Elizabeth Van Deren and Mrs. Leon Gill Abbott, nee Miss Lillian Julian; then the groomsmen, Mr. Joseph Davis, of Paris, and Mr. Gayle Alexander; the bridesmaids, Misses Emma Wupperman, of San Antonio, Tex., and Mrs. James Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., advancing next; after them the maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss Talitha Chenault, and following her the pretty flower girl, the little cousin of the bride, Martha Lawson Brown, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown. As they entered the drawing room the bridegroom came at the same time by the near door with the best man, Mr. Augustus Gay, and meeting at the altar the bridal couple stood before the waiting minister, Rev. J. W. Porter, for the impressive marriage service, the "Evening Star" from Thannhauser being the soft low music heard.

The bride was charming in grace and beauty, her wedding gown being of soft white satin, with court train, the tulle veil fastened in her hair with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony and congratulations the wedding supper was served in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated with white willow baskets of pine cones from the South and vases and bowls of white roses. An elegant supper was served in buffet style. The bride's cake was served on a small table, from which the emblems of fate were drawn with white and green ribbons.

About one hundred and fifty guests were present, only relatives and most intimate young friends of the two families being included in the list.

They were received by Mrs. Chenault, who wore a gown of black velvet with jet trimmings, Mrs. Elmore, in orchid satin trimmed in cut steel, Miss Elizabeth Chenault in pink satin and lace; Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, the bridegroom's parents, Mrs. Thompson wearing a handsome gown of black net with trimmings, and Miss Mattie Marshall Curd, of Louisville, who came over Saturday for the occasion.

After the wedding supper the bride and bridegroom left on the C. & O. train for a bridal trip to points of interest in the East. Their train was in a wreck just outside of Lexington, but they were uninjured. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will be at home for the present with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Thompson, at their beautiful country home, near Paris.

The principals of the wedding are representatives of the most prominent families in Bourbon and Fayette. The bride is a graduate of Lexington schools and the Bristol School in Washington, and is a handsome and attractive young woman, who is a favorite in the younger set of Lexington society. Mr. Thompson is a graduate of the University of Virginia, and one of the most prominent of the younger generation of Bourbon county farmers.
